

The Oxford and Cambridge Club Players Present a “Virtual Production” of An Ideal Husband By Oscar Wilde

Wednesday 18 November 2020

For their November reading the Players are returning to Oscar Wilde with a An Ideal Husband. It was first performed at the Haymarket Theatre, London on the 3rd January 1895 and continued for 124 performances.

Underneath a surface of frivolity and witty exchanges, Wilde explores the serious question of the relationship between political power and personal morality.

The Players are delighted to welcome Tom Sterling to the ranks of The Players in the role of Lord Goring and to welcome back west-end star Gay Soper in the role of Lady Markby.
